Industry, public agencies turn out to learn about new Caltrans asphalt specifications

More than 80 people representing asphalt producers, contractors and public agencies packed a community center in Vacaville to hear the latest changes to the California Department of Transportation (Caltrans) asphalt specifications.

Put on by the California Asphalt Pavement Association (CalAPA), the June 16 seminar featured Terrie Bressette of the Caltrans Transportation Laboratory, who was the chief coordinator of the changes, and CalAPA Technical Committee members Skip Brown, president of Delta Construction, and Jack Van Kirk, Director of Asphalt Technology for George Reed Inc. The City of Vacaville's Department of Public Works hosted the meeting.

The new specifications, known as "Section 39," as well as presentations and other helpful information, are posted on a special CalAPA "Section 39 Resources" page on the CalAPA website:
